“I feel more confident I can help, after taking this class.”

--FADR Participant

This four-hour, skill-building workshop trains participants to recognize life threats in 15 seconds, protect an airway and stop bleeding.

Although designed for non-medical volunteers, many MDs, RNs and EMTs have attended the workshop and evaluated it as a timely and valuable update in knowledge and skills.

Marin Medical Reserve Corps MDs, RNs and EMTs lead the training and provide individual coaching. Marin County Department of Health & Human Services will provide Continuing Education Credits to MMRC RNs and EMTs who complete the class.

The focus is to build skills to help save a life in the first few minutes to hours after a major disaster, when 911 crews likely won't be able to help everybody that needs help.

The class is very interactive in design:

- short lectures
- demonstrations
- ample time to practice skills
- expert presenters and coaches to guide your practice
- use first aid supplies you normally can find at home
